Earth Bamboo® - It's the new Timber

There are many reasons why bamboo flooring is an excellent alternative to timber for both residential and commercial projects.

Bamboo's main attraction is that it is renewable—it grows very fast, and what is harvested is just the stems, like a giant stalk of grass.

Cutting the bamboo actually promotes the growth of the stalks, and mature bamboo has an extensive root system that continues to send up new shoots for decades.

Compared to traditional hardwood timbers, bamboo takes one tenth of the time (5-6 years) to grow to harvesting size—making it a smart choice for the environment.

If you're looking for flooring that is naturally beautiful, easy to care for, and warm and comfortable underfoot, look no further as Earth Bamboo® is the flooring choice for you.

Earth Bamboo® is an Australian owned and based manufacturing wholesaler of 100% premium grade, environmentally friendly solid bamboo flooring. Our products are highly sought after for all types of projects. Visit your local flooring retailer and ask about the Earth Bamboo® product range.

Key factors to consider when choosing bamboo flooring

Most bamboo floors on the market may look alike, but in terms of quality, they are quite different. The quality of Earth Bamboo® flooring is the result of the care taken in the selection of the bamboo strips, the manufacturing of the boards and the finishing of their surface.

Our manufacturing plant is ISO9001:2000 accredited and works to the highest international quality standards using the best raw materials available.

Earth Bamboo® is harvested from our controlled growth forests at the optimum age (between five and six years' growth) to ensure that our finished product is as durable and stable as it can possibly be.

Our manufacturing plant manages the entire manufacturing process, from the harvesting of the bamboo right through to the application of the polyurethane coatings, thus ensuring total quality control (many bamboo manufacturing plants do not).

We are an Australian owned and based company and we are proud of the quality of our bamboo flooring.

Therefore, we offer the best bamboo flooring warranty available in the marketplace—Lifetime structural warranty (residential).

Earth Bamboo® is only available at quality flooring retailers, giving you added peace of mind that you are buying the best bamboo flooring available in the marketplace.
